Vanderpump & Sykes Secure LawNet Membership

LawNet, the leading best practice network of mid-sized legal firms, has admitted Enfield law firm Vanderpump & Sykes as a member.

The firm will be using LawNet's specialist training to develop skills and link with other member firms across the national network to exchange ideas and build referral routes.

Formed in 1989, LawNet is the UK and Ireland's leading network of independent law firms. Today, with over 60 firms ranging in size from six to 39 partners, it provides a range of powerful benefits to its members and their clients.

For Enfield-based Vanderpump and Sykes, Philip Lancaster added: "Like everyone, we're looking for quality, cost-effective solutions that enhance rather than compromise the level of service to clients. The library services alone are enough to justify membership of LawNet and we could also see very tangible benefits in the CPD training and anti-money laundering services."

Said John Thomas, LawNet's chief executive: "There are only a limited number of firms that are eligible for membership – they must be able to demonstrate certain attributes such as commitment to maintaining a professional quality standard, so we're very pleased to see the membership extended within the South East."
